Choking Catarrh.

Have you awakened from a disturbed sleep with all the horrible sensations of an assassin clutching your throat and pressing the life breath from your tightened chest? Have you noticed the languor and debility that succeed the effort to clear your throat and head of this catarrhal matter? What a depressing influence it exerts upon the mind, clouding the memory and filling the head with pains and strange noises! How difficult it is to rid the nasal passages, throat and lungs of this poisonous mucus all can testify who are afflicted with Catarrh. How difficult to protect the system against its further progress toward the lungs, liver and kidneys all physicians will admit. It is a terrible disease and cries out for relief and cure.

The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references.

Production of Gold and Silver in the United States.

THE SURPLUS CASH RESOLUTION.

Two Men Go Through Whirlpool Rapids in a Cask—Arrival of Michael Davitt—Shocking Train Accident

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Dr. James P. Kimball, director of the mint, has completed his report on the production of gold and silver in the United States during the calendar year 1885. The production of gold is estimated at $31,800,000, an increase of $1,000,000 over the estimate for the calendar year 1884. The production of silver for the calendar year 1885, calculated at the coining rate in silver dollars, is estimated at $51,600,000, against $48,800,000 in 1884, an increase of $2,800,000.

Colorado still retains the foremost rank as the largest producer of precious metals, California maintaining second place. The most notable changes have been in Montana and Idaho, the production of the former being increased from [illegible] 000 in 1884 to nearly $[illegible] 000 in 1885, and the latter from $[illegible] in 1884 to $[illegible] in 1885. Nevada, Utah, New Mexico and Dakota still hold their own, while the production of Arizona has slightly increased.

COINAGE STATISTICS.

Coinage executed during the calendar year at the coinage mints consisted of [illegible] 544,621 pieces of the face value of $[illegible]. Of this amount [illegible] pieces, valued at $[illegible], consisted of gold coin, and [illegible] pieces, valued at $[illegible], of silver coin. The remainder was of minor coin. The number of silver dollars coined during the calendar year 1885 was [illegible]. In addition to the coinage, gold and silver bars of the value of $[illegible] 490,095 were manufactured by the mints and assay offices during the year.

The total value of bullion and coin imported to the United States during the calendar year was $41,418,02[illegible], of which $8[illegible] consisted of bullion and $[illegible] 5,120 of coin. Of total imports $[illegible] consisted of gold and $[illegible] of silver. Total exports of gold and silver from the United States during the same year were $44[illegible], of which $11,41[illegible] was gold and $[illegible] 512 silver. While the United States lost by net exportation during the year $[illegible] 606,081 in silver, it gained $[illegible] by net importation of gold.

The report contains an elaborate review of coin circulation of the United States. The director's advance estimate of January 1, 1886, is reviewed, as well as estimates of his predecessors. Some errors in still earlier estimates have been corrected. A deduction from the stock of gold coin of $[illegible] is made for bullion in the treasury July 1, 1883, heretofore included as coin, and for an error in exports of gold coin, as reported for 1884, $[illegible], a total of $20,[illegible]. This with $30,000,000 deducted in his fiscal report makes a total reduction of $50,[illegible] from estimates by his predecessor of the stock of gold coin in the United States.

HOW THE COIN IS HELD.

The director estimated the amount of gold coin in the United States on January 1, 1886, to have been $[illegible] 48[illegible], of silver dollars $[illegible], of subsidiary silver $[illegible] 054,111, or a total stock of coin of $[illegible].

Of the stock of gold coin the United States treasury held, over and above outstanding gold certificates, $[illegible], and national banks $[illegible], including treasury and clearing house certificates. One thousand and fifteen state banks and trust companies held, November 1, 1885, $[illegible], which left in the hands of the people and other banks $[illegible] 441,[illegible].

Of silver dollars which have been coined the United States treasury owns (not represented by silver certificates) $[illegible] 725, and the national banks $[illegible]. The amount owned by private individuals and other banks, including those in the treasury represented by certificates outstanding, is $[illegible] 80,408. Of subsidiary silver about $[illegible] 000 was in the treasury and $[illegible] 000,000 outstanding.

The result of his inquiries leads the director to the conclusion either that the consumption of gold and silver in the industries has fallen off since 1883, or that there is less duplication in returns than heretofore between original and secondary manufacturers.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

THE SURPLUS RESOLUTION.

NEW YORK, Aug. [illegible].—The World's Washington special says: The president has evidently repented of his action in not signing the surplus resolution. After a consultation with his cabinet associates [illegible] day it was decided that bonds shall be called in accordance with the resolution, as it [illegible]. A first call [illegible] the amount will be made each month until the administration is satisfied the experiment of reducing the surplus by such a [illegible] payment of the public debt can be safely done. It is said in behalf of the president that he did not sign the resolution because he did not want to be bound by its limitations. From a high official source it was learned the president intends at present to have three calls made of $15,000,000 each during as many months, and after that period to continue or suspend them as he may think the commercial situation demands.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Col. Morrison's attention was called to a statement in the papers that the president and [illegible] have decided upon a treasury policy substantially the same as provided in the late surplus resolution. Morrison was emphatic in his declaration that he did not believe it.

"Why didn't Mr. Cleveland approve my resolution if he felt that way?" he asked. Being asked if he would introduce a similar measure at the next session, Morrison replied that December was too far ahead for him to say what he would do. At the treasury department nothing is known regarding the reported intention to carry out the Morrison idea. Those who know the president's views best say he is unalterably opposed to the principle of the resolution, and that it is absurd to say he will adopt it. Bond calls will be made just as the condition of the treasury from time to time will justify, according to the rules heretofore observed.

JACKSON'S RESIGNATION NOT RECEIVED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Secretary Bayard said to-night that he had not received the resignation of Jackson, minister to Mexico, and that there was nothing new in the Cutting case since the dispatch received yesterday from the United States consul notifying him of the prisoner's sentence.

THROUGH WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS.

The Trip Successfully Made by Two Men in a Cask.

BUFFALO, Aug. 8.—The turbulent waters of Niagara's whirlpool rapids were again navigated in a cask to-day, the perilous feat being successfully accomplished by two men. The daring voyagers were Wm. Potts and George Hazlett, two coopers who were employed in the same shop with Graham, who made the initial trip about three weeks ago. The barrel boat was ten feet long, conical in form and built of the best locust staves. It was supplied with a keel, rudder, screw wheel and turret with glass covered peep holes. About 300 pounds of sand ballast kept it right side up most of the time. The two men lay back to back while passing through the more turbulent waters, clinging to handles made fast to the side of the cask. Each man likewise kept on his own side of the cask by means of a canvas sling made fast to the staves.

The start was made from the Maid of the Mist landing, on the Canada side, at 4:25 P. M. A rowboat towed the cask to a point just above the cantilever bridge, where it was turned adrift in the middle of the stream. The craft was submerged about half the time while passing through the rapids, but while circumscribing the outer circle of the whirlpool its occupants thrust their heads through an opening, and Potts calmly smoked a cigar.

A successful landing was made at Queenstown, on the Canada side, [illegible] miles from the starting place. The voyage occupied fifty-five minutes. The feat was witnessed by no less than 1,500 spectators.

CROP PROSPECTS.

Bad News from the Corn Belt—Wheat of Excellent Quality.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The following crop summary will appear in this week's issue of the Farmers' Review: Rains have improved prospects for corn in portions of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio and Kansas, while in Indiana the tenor of reports indicates an average yield. Very large sections in all the remaining corn growing states have as yet had no relief from drouth, and reports are now coming which would indicate a failure of the crop in large areas. Reports from Fulton county, Illinois, state that much of the corn is fired in the ear and some in tassel. The entire crop threatens to be a failure. In Macon county corn has attained a growth of six to eight feet and the present outlook is for nearly a full average crop. In Olmstead and Blue Earth counties the outlook is very good. Throughout Missouri the prospect is not good for more than one half and three fourths of an average yield. In North Pulaski and Lafayette counties the crop appears to be almost ruined. In Michigan the outlook for corn is poor, with a prospect of three fourths of an average crop. Reports from Wisconsin do not give promise to exceed one half an average yield. In Nebraska the prospect continues good for nearly a full average yield.

The quality of winter wheat is generally reported as above average. The berry is plump and hard, giving promise that the grain will grade unusually well. This is the tenor of reports from Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

The yield of spring wheat in Iowa ranges from twelve to twenty two bushels to the acre, only one county, Muscatine, reporting the latter figure. In Minnesota the yield is reported at from [illegible] to fifteen bushels. In Nebraska the yield ranges from six to fifteen bushels.

Complaints are general from Iowa, Missouri, Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois of pastures drying up and failing.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

ITEMS FROM VICTORIA.

VICTORIA, Aug. 8.—Patrick Priestly, of Seattle, a native of Philadelphia, aged 35 years, died in the Nanaimo hospital Saturday. He was one of the men injured in the coal dust explosion on the Queen of the Pacific. Allison, first engineer, and W. Pacie are out of danger. The remainder are believed to be mending slowly, but physicians do not say positively that they will recover.

Coast canneries will pack under 40,000 cases. On the Fraser river an utter failure is anticipated. The pack is 40,000 cases. The total pack for the province is 80,000 cases. Three hundred thousand cases were to have been sold at a profit on [illegible] cost.

CALIFORNIA.

GOING HOME VIA PORTLAND.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—Governor Robie's party from Maine, numbering thirteen, and Governor Fairchild's of Wisconsin, numbering eleven, will leave next Sunday for Portland, and visit Seattle, Victoria, B. C., and Yellowstone park. Gen. Logan and party will leave on the 20th, going home over the Northern Pacific. The greater portion of the visitors from New York, Illinois and Michigan have engaged passage for Portland, Yellowstone park being the attraction. Members of the Pennsylvania delegation will return home on Monday by the way of the Northern Pacific line.

FISH TRAPS AND POUND NETS.

ILWACO, Aug. 4.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

In your weekly issue of July 30 you make the statement that the fish traps in Baker's bay are filling up the channels, that their effect on water is that of a wing dam, etc. Such absurd and erroneous statements being contrary to the general principles of the OREGONIAN, your subscribers in this section have reluctantly come to the conclusion that you have been improperly informed on this subject. Strictly speaking there are no traps in Baker's bay. What you call traps are simply pounds, and are as different from the traps on the river above Astoria as anything can well be. They are not built with heavy piles driven close together, as you seem to think, but with small stakes about six inches in diameter, and are driven about fifteen feet apart; on this cotton netting is hung, the lower edge being kept down with small flat rocks. At the close of the season the netting, rocks, and in the majority of cases the stakes also, are taken ashore. The shoaling of the north channel is caused by the shifting of Sand island and also by the making out of Peacock spit. That channel was abandoned by deep water vessels before there was such a thing as a pound net in Baker's bay, in which there is as much water as there was ten years ago. Fish traps as built up the river would not stand here through one storm, as they are too unwieldy, but pounds, being made of material which offers little or no resistance to the sea or currents, can stand where the others would wash out. There are no pounds in the ship channel. They would not fish there, and in a number of cases they are placed where they are dry at low water. I emphatically deny that they shoal the water in the slightest degree and challenge any one to prove that they do so, but if such were the case, instead of being an injury to the river they would be a positive benefit, as they would simply do on this side what Capt. Powell is doing on the other, viz: narrow the entrance. It would be a good thing for the river if it was lined with fish traps, not pounds, from Portland to the bar, as they would, as you say, have the effect of a dam, and by narrowing the river would make the water deeper. Pounds have no effect on the depth of water.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

Particulars of the Sentence of Cutting in Mexico.

THE NEW ZEALAND EARTHQUAKES

Cholera Raging in Japan—The Liberal Federation Issues a Manifesto—Wild Scenes of Disorder in Belfast

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8.—A special from El Paso says: As sentence was pronounced upon Cutting at Paso del Norte last evening, the prisoner turned slightly pale, but was otherwise thoroughly composed. When the reading of the sentence was finished he asked in a loud voice of the court, at the same time pointing to Medina: "About the $600. Is that [illegible] to get any of it?"

At this point Consul Brigham interposed to stop him.

"If the prisoner uses insulting language," said the judge, "I can add something to the term of his sentence."

Consul Brigham assured the court that neither he nor Cutting meant any disrespect to it. "He understands," said Brigham, "just what this is for."

It is for publication on the other side of the article which it is held vitiated the reconciliation made on this side.

"And this act on the other side," continued Brigham, "was construed on this side as contempt of court." To this the court replied in the negative.

THE PRISONER QUESTIONED.

The court then turned to the prisoner and asked: "Do you still stand under the protection of your government?"

"I do," replied Cutting.

"Do you wish to take an appeal to the supreme court?" the judge asked.

"I have no appeal to make except to the government of the United States."

"If you should desire to take an appeal," said Judge Zubia, "you have five days in which to give notice. Do you wish to sign the proceedings of this court?"

"I sign nothing."

"Do you wish to express satisfaction or dissatisfaction with the sentence?"

"No, sir. I have never recognized your court or jurisdiction and I do not recognize its right to impose on me for one hour."

Cutting was taken back to jail and will be sent to Chihuahua in a day or two.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

No sooner was the fact of Cutting's sentence known than both towns on the Mexican and American side were wild with excitement over the matter. Two secret meetings were held here and companies of minute men were organized. Merchants fear harm if soldiers are not promptly on hand. They realize that congress only can declare war, but the superior number of Mexican soldiers in Paso del Norte would play havoc with the single company now at Fort Bliss, one mile from El Paso. Arms and ammunition are not scarce, however, and citizens are secretly organizing, so as to act on the defensive. Their voice is unanimous for vindication of American honor and protection of our citizens. Mexicans too are angry at the tenor of our press, and the people are fearful of violence on account of numerous mass meetings which are being held. A dispatch from Rio Grande city, Texas, says a heavy force of Mexican revolutionists crossed the river into Texas on Thursday night. A troop of the Eighth United States cavalry was ordered yesterday from Ringgold barracks to pursue and disarm them.

A STARTLING STATEMENT.

English Owners of Mexican Lands Trying to Foment War.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Sun's London special: The imbroglio between the United States and Mexico over the imprisonment by the Mexican authorities of Mr. Cutting possesses a peculiarly strong interest for a large number of Englishmen who are speculating in land in Northern Mexico. A London syndicate recently purchased enormous tracts of Mexican land lying along the American border at prices varying from 5 to 10 cents per acre. Mexican agents in London declare that the representatives of these English speculators are fomenting war between America and Mexico for the sole purpose of forwarding their own interests. They know that the result of annexation by the United States of any of the northern districts of Mexico would immeasurably enhance the value of their holdings, and they are pulling their wires accordingly. Besides Cutting, there are other tools, conscious and unconscious, who are being used [illegible] to disturb the hitherto peaceful relations of the two great republics.

THE NEW ZEALAND EARTHQUAKES.

Additional Particulars of the Recent Volcanic Disturbances.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—The steamer Mariposa, which arrived this evening from Australia, brings further details of the great volcanic disturbances which lately occurred in New Zealand. Heavy earthquakes continued in Tarawera and at sulphur springs districts, and severe earthquakes continued to be felt in the Rotorua district. A relief party sent out reported that Lake Tarawera had fallen considerably. The [illegible] at Whakarewarewa was throwing up stones and mud to the height of twenty feet, and the great boiling lagoon Papakura would suddenly rise [illegible] two feet and then as quickly fall. A similar phenomenon was observed at the Kuirau cauldron, which would rise two feet in half an hour and then as suddenly return to its normal level.

Mr. Dansey, telegraph officer in charge at Rotorua station, near where the eruptions and earthquakes were heaviest, reports June [illegible]th that volcano No. 1 subsided, Nos. 2 and [illegible] were steaming, and No. 4 still throwing up mud. Lake Rotomahana was comparatively quiet. Ohinemutu geyser in the center was playing. The Pink terrace geyser was still blowing up clouds of steam, but were less active than they had been. The immense crevasse [illegible] between the White terrace and Tarawera continued to steam, and the cone on top of Tarawera mountain was throwing out volumes of black smoke and steam.

The New Zealand Herald says: On the Tarawera [illegible] as the volcanic showers of mud took at times the most eccentric course, overleaping a section of land, then striking another further on. [illegible] Mr. Hector, who is making a scientific examination of the volcanic districts, reports that the volcanic cone which was thrown up in Lake Rotomahana during the disturbances had already by July [illegible] attained the height of [illegible] feet and was daily adding to its stature. He has named it Mount Hazard, after a gentleman of that name who lost his life the first night of the great eruption. Chemical examinations of volcanic ashes show that they are mostly composed of fine basaltic soil.

Every [illegible] man being had abandoned the entire [illegible] of country situated within the line of the volcanic system. Photographers were busily engaged in taking views of the region.

MANIFESTO FROM THE LIBERAL FEDERATION.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The National Liberal Federation, the outgrowth of Chamberlain's caucus, has issued a manifesto saying: "Although the result of the elections has not realized our hopes, the situation is encouraging, supporters of half measures being smallest ground in parliament. Gladstone has secured the support of a vast majority of the liberals and liberal organizations. As far as the federation is concerned the results of the appeal to the country completely justify the course taken by its counsel. Greatly as we regret our losses, the manner in which the liberal [illegible] responded to Mr. Gladstone's appeal proves the federation represents the opinion of the liberal party. The party being committed to effect [illegible] a union between England and Ireland will never abandon that [illegible] until the good has been reached. Progress is possible in liberal work until that has been settled. [illegible] conservatives will [illegible] [illegible] the earliest possible moment an excellent settlement [illegible] policy in regard to Ireland [illegible] Gladstone [illegible] lives and its ultimate triumph is assured."

JAPAN.

CHOLERA RAGING IN JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—The steamer San Pablo arrived to-day with Hong Kong dates to July 13th and Yokohama to July 2[illegible]d. Associated press advices from Tokio, Japan, are as follows:

Cholera is now raging in Yokohama and Tokio. In the former place it is worse than it ever was before. During the last five days in July, 15th to 20th, cases have averaged over 100 daily and deaths fifty. There is every reason to fear that it will spread further, as the atmospheric conditions are at the present time favorable to the propagation of the epidemic. The weather is the hottest experienced since 1871. Up to date only two foreigners have been attacked (names not known), both of whom died. The better classes of foreigners and natives are comparatively exempt from the disease.

MEETING OF EMPERORS.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON CITY.

Representative Hermann on Northern Pacific Forfeiture—Spokane and Palouse Railway Company

[Correspondence of The Oregonian.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31, 1886.

Congressman Hermann's speech on the bill to forfeit the land grant to the Northern Pacific railroad appears in the Congressional Record of yesterday. As to his views on the question of forfeiture he says:

"I do not propose to enter into a discussion of the merits of this proposed general forfeiture, nor do I venture an opinion at length as to the abstract right of the government to forfeit, or the corporation to claim in law or in equity, this grant. I take my stand and am controlled in this matter by that course which I conceive will produce a concurrence of both houses of congress in some forfeiture. This will give us success at this session. No other course will. A failure to effect a forfeiture now will allow the railroad company to earn the lands on the present unfinished Cascade branch before we can act at the next session. We know that the senate will not concur in the house bill, but we know we can concur in the senate bill and pass it now, and save all the grant unearned along unconstructed road. Why, sir, do we not do this?"

It will be remembered that the senate bill proposes to forfeit only the line from Wallula to Portland and the uncompleted line on the Cascade branch, while the house bill proposes to forfeit all lands coterminous with the road west of Bismarck, and it was this latter proposition that was under discussion.

Mr. Hermann further said: "I can see no relief in this persistent and useless struggle. But on the contrary it does seem to me we invite in our defeat a further loss of the public domain by postponing forfeiture of the unearned lands, with continued anxiety and loss to thousands of poor people settled on these grants and inconceivable derangement to the public progress along the line. Firmly impressed with this belief, I can not believe it advisable to support the measure. To dismiss what is possible, indeed what is now offered, is to directly and practically aid and perpetuate the very system we pretend to abhor. The result of our action is a direct benefit to the corporation and an injury to the people. We prevent a restoration of these unearned lands and enable the [illegible] by our delay to complete their roads and [illegible] to invoke the aid of the courts for their title. For one I do not propose to be hoodwinked in any such scheme. Let us not do by indirection what we would not do by direction. If we are friends of the settler let us say so by our acts. If we are sincere in our professions of preserving the remainder of our public lands let us not delay action."

The speech was not so much one dealing with the legal question involved in forfeiture as it was an argument in favor of immediate action on the ground of expediency. The speaker traced the history of the road from the granting of its charter in 1864, and showed at length the condition of the country when the grant was made. He quoted from several newspapers published within the 214 mile division, among them THE OREGONIAN, showing the general sentiment of the people on the question of forfeiture, and also presented a petition signed by nearly 3,000 settlers between Wallula and Portland, praying for the forfeiture of that division. The charge having often been made that the republican party is responsible for all the land grants, Mr. Hermann took occasion to answer this charge and to present a few interesting facts.

"The record of the republican party being more familiar to the public, as it is the more recent, we are reminded that while in the majority immense grants of lands were voted away by it. But what [illegible] on the other side? Up to 1860, before the advent of the republican party to power, over [illegible] 40,000 acres of land had been voted away for railroads. The grant to the Illinois Central Railroad company, embracing not mountains as chiefly in Montana and Idaho, but the finest lands on the face of the earth, was passed largely through the earnest efforts of such distinguished democrats as Stephen A. Douglas. Though far less in quantity, it was worth more than the entire grant to the Northern Pacific company. There were also numerous other grants made, such as in Illinois, [illegible] Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Large grants were voted Indiana, Ohio and other states for canals. In addition to these [illegible] 000,000 acres were also voted to various states as swamp lands, then largely parceled out to syndicates and jobbers. But of all systems permitting speculation in public lands the cash entry was the worst. Here there was no limitation in amount.

"No, sir, this is not a party question, and in view of past legislation it comes with poor grace from the one party to criticise the other for extravagance in the disposal of the public lands. Let us rather engage our thoughts and most earnest efforts in the one intelligent direction of preserving what remains as a trust fund for the landless of our common country. No higher duty appertains to-day to the representatives of the people than this. There is no greater curse even now existing than the facility with which corporations, monopolies and syndicates can secure immense bodies of public lands. * * * Over [illegible] 000,000 acres have been purchased and are now owned in large estates by various foreigners and foreign syndicates whose homes are in other nations. Is the public lands committee doing nothing toward reporting a bill which shall restrict aliens holding real estate in this nation? It seems almost incredible, but it is true, that in one of the states of this union there are two English syndicates, the one holding 4,000,000 acres and the other [illegible] 000,000 acres. Several million five hundred thousand acres of American soil in one state owned by British landlords. In Florida Sir Edward Reid owns [illegible] 000 acres. In another state the Marquis of Tweeddale and company of London owns [illegible] 750,000 acres, Lord Dunmore owns 100,000 acres, Lord Houghton 60,000, Lord Dunraven 60,000, Duke of Sutherland 425,000, Phillips, Marshall & Co., of London, [illegible] 000 acres, and so on. Is the committee insensible to these enormous facts?"

SPOKANE & PALOUSE RAILWAY.

There was introduced in the senate this week as a rider to another bill the bill authorizing the Spokane & Palouse Railway company the right to construct and maintain a railway, telegraph and telephone line through the reservation occupied by the Coeur d'Alene Indians, beginning at a point on the westerly line of said reservation where the track of the Spokane & Palouse railway (said track being from a point at or near the track of the Spokane & Palouse railway, now near Spangle station, to the city of Wardner, Idaho territory) would strike said line, running thence in a northeasterly direction by the most practicable route to the northerly line of said reservation, with the right to construct, use and maintain such tracks, turnouts and additions as said company may deem it to their interest to construct along and upon the right of way and depot grounds herein granted. There shall be granted a right of way 100 feet in width through the reservation, and at every ten miles for station purposes a strip 200 feet wide and 3000 feet long. Before any lands shall be used the consent of the Indians thereto shall be obtained. Full compensation for the land used shall be made to the Indians, such compensation to be determined by the secretary of the interior. The company shall build their line through the reservation within [illegible] years after the passage of the act, or else the grant shall be forfeited for the uncompleted road. The road must be fenced through all improved lands. The company shall prohibit the riding by Indians through the reservation on any of its trains, except especially provided with passes from the Indian agent. The company shall give a bond of $[illegible] 000 conditional for the payment of damages which may accrue by the maiming or killing of animals in the construction or operation of the railway. In accepting the right of way the company must stipulate for its successors that they will not in any manner aid any effort to extinguish the [illegible] title. [illegible] of this provision shall work a forfeiture of [illegible] the company. [illegible] shall be in [illegible] its passage.

Senator Jones of Arkansas [illegible] a bill granting a right of way through this reservation to the Washington [illegible] Railroad company. The conditions and restrictions of this bill are [illegible] of the Spokane [illegible]. The routes [illegible] differ, that of the latter beginning at a point on the westerly line of said reservation [illegible] the Washington [illegible] Idaho railroad with the Idaho branch of said road near [illegible] W. T., [illegible] territory, and running [illegible] northerly direction across Coeur d'Alene Indian reservation to a point near the mouth of the Saint Joseph river on the Coeur d'Alene lake, thence in a northeasterly direction along the east side of the Coeur d'Alene lake to the Coeur d'Alene river, and thence in a generally easterly direction, by the Coeur d'Alene mission, to the east line of the reservation.

PORTLAND, MONDAY, AUGUST 9, 1886.

NEW SOUTHERN VIEWS.

A correspondent of the New York Sun, writing from Columbia, South Carolina, says that political conditions in that state and throughout the entire South, are undergoing rapid change. The writer declares that in South Carolina democratic discontents and discords have so grown that "the leaders are holding their breath;" that they are "afraid to speak on any public question or to offer themselves for any state office," though the nominating convention is just at hand; and that "the acuteness of the crisis may be judged from this fact, for there are generally a hundred contestants for every office, and the South Carolina politician usually is chock full of views on every subject under the sun."

The writer attributes this situation to a great variety of circumstances, among which are the growing strength of protection in the South, the character and conduct of the Cleveland administration, and the prohibition movement. Probably a more potent cause than any other of this manifest change is the removal of the pressure of republican ideas—that is to say, the ideas of the republican party—upon the South, through republican national administration. Owing to its affinities for the democratic party on subjects now historical, the South will receive kindly from that party many things which it steadily repelled while the republican party offered and pressed them.

This is conspicuously true with regard to protection. The South was long the citadel of free trade. But, if we may judge from the tone of the most conspicuous democratic newspapers of the South, the demand for protection is rapidly rising there. Thus, the Atlanta Constitution protests vigorously against the free trade utterances of the Courier-Journal, and, as an indication of the sentiment rapidly gaining ground in the South, it points the Louisville paper to the nomination of candidates for congress for the coming elections in Southern states, on platforms that declare strongly for protection. "The truth of the business is," says the Constitution, defiantly, "the Old South has become the New South, and the New South is a very practical South. This will account for the present and forthcoming manifestations that will cause the agents of the whisky ring to grow bald with bitterness. Our young and growing industries must be fostered; our farmers who are now compelled to plant all cotton must be given the benefit of home markets." With the doctrines implied in these utterances one may not agree; their utterance in leading Southern newspapers is the significant thing.

Quite in the same vein is the talk of the New Orleans Times-Democrat. That paper declares itself also a disciple of the "New South" school of Southern democracy, as regards the doctrine of protection, and levels its keenest shafts at "statesmen like Morrison and Hewitt," who have "so long waved the suffering consumer at us, asseverating, with their hands upon their bursting hearts, that a protective tariff always forces the people to pay the reasonable prices of production plus the duty, or just enough less than that to keep the cheap philanthropic goods of Europe out of reach." Likewise, the Mobile Register: "It is very easy to talk about 'robbing the people,' and an iniquitous system; but will our people be robbed when the South shall be dotted with manufacturing establishments, and the farmer shall find a home market for the production of honest toil? We think not. And many of our people agree with us, and the number is increasing each year. Our section is becoming a practical South."

Will the democratic party, as represented in its national conventions and in congress, modify its utterances to meet the new views of the South on such questions as prohibition and protection; or will it go on as heretofore, resolving against "sumptuary laws" and for a "tariff for revenue only?" And if it does not change, what will be the consequence?

TILDEN'S POINT OF FAILURE.

The career of the late Samuel J. Tilden was a notable one, and the lesson of his life has a moral worth reciting. In a purely intellectual sense he was the ablest mind the democratic party of the Empire state has produced since the death of Silas Wright. In moral power he was grossly inferior to Wright, but in learning and power of literary expression, he was his superior, as he was the superior of any living statesman of his party. As a logician Thurman was his equal, but he had not his rare gift of expression. Tilden was an able political thinker and writer when but 19 years of age, winning praise for his remarkable power from Washington Irving. During nearly fifty years of active career he was distinguished as a jurist, a politician, an administrator and executive; he was an untiring student; he had great practical talents; he was all his life directly or indirectly concerned with the transaction of important public business, and retired from their performance with a reputation for admirable ability. He was a distinguished figure in his party as a political thinker and writer before he was 25 years of age; from 1833 to 1848 he was conspicuous for the ability of his published papers. A sickly boy, his constitution was too feeble to permit of great oratorical efforts, but his pen was at once acute, powerful, and at times full of nervous eloquence of expression. His conduct of the campaign against Tammany was masterly in its skill and relentless in its vigor; his destruction of the canal ring when governor was marked by the same capacity. His life until his health failed was one of incessant public activity, including many grave and useful labors, to which he was called, not through any personal popularity, nor altogether through political chicane on his own part, but largely because of his superior ability for all kinds of public business, from that of legislation up to the higher performances of a politician of the first order of talent.

The flaw in Tilden's composition was his capacity easily to convert his conscience to any cause of which his ambition approved. He lacked disinterestedness and loyalty to principle; he began in 1833 an able champion of Jackson and the Union; he sat at the feet of Silas Wright and accepted his free soil principles; he maintained them all through the fight of 1848. Then he seems to have become absorted in his profession as a railroad lawyer and the amassing of wealth. Then he became a Tammany democrat, so unscrupulous that he was the manager of that corrupt campaign of 1868, when Hoffman was elected governor by gigantic frauds over Griswold, and Seymour carried the state over Grant. Then he turned on Tammany in 1872 and rode into power as a reformer over the dead bodies of the Tweed ring. To him a party was only a horse to ride into power and pelf, and then to be dismissed with a kick when it foundered and began to go lame. He trusted none of his peers in intellect; his confidants were small men, like Apgar. Measured by his gifts, and the industry, energy and ability with which he utilized them, Tilden ought to have risen to the rank of a great statesman, and yet the fact that with all his rare public abilities and services he missed a place among the noble figures of his time is the instructive moral of this remarkable man's career. He illustrated better than any man of his time the truth that learning, scholarship, subtlety of intellect, practical talent, backed by exhaustless mental energy, ambition and industry will not make a man of genius a statesman, if he is without high personal convictions or principles such as we call party faith or private conscience. In his early career, conspicuous as the able champion of free soil opinions, he lived to become a bitter pro-slavery democrat, and the ablest enemy of Lincoln, who was elected president on Tilden's old platform of free soil. For years the confidant of the Tammany ring leaders, he was the first to leap from the unseaworthy ship and open fire upon his old messmates until he sunk the craft on which he had so often sailed when the weather was fair. Then he turned on Kelly, whose help he had accepted to crush Tweed; from first to last this cold selfish man fought for his own hand; he knew no such thing as a great public cause separated from personal interest. As a man of cold persistency, of ambition without faith, feeling or convictions, he recalls these lines which L well penned years ago on Caleb Cushing:

> General C. is a dreadful smart man;
> He's been on all sides that gives places or pelf;
> But consistency still was a part of his plan:
> He's been true to one party, and that is himself.

Tilden passes off the stage without a motion of reverence from a nation that followed Lincoln, Andrew and Grant with tears to the tomb. Surely the obvious lesson of such a career is worthy of consideration as signal proof how mean great intellectual parts seem, except when associated with the essential moral attributes of statesmanship.

REFORMATORY LEGISLATION.

Massachusetts is trying a new experiment in penal legislation. It takes the form of a law of "indeterminate sentences," applicable to all persons convicted of crimes for which the sentence is less than five years. The new law has just taken effect. It provides that, unless the criminal is condemned for a term exceeding the period above stated, the judge's sentence shall not specify the term of imprisonment; and further, that the term shall depend on the discretion of the superintendent of the prison and board of commissioners, who may release the prisoner on his good behavior under surveillance of the law at any time after one month, if in their judgment it may be safely done.

This plan was recommended to the legislature of Massachusetts as a practicable one for the reclamation of persons not utterly bad, who yet have been guilty of crime. Under its working the man rightly disposed, whose crime is the result of momentary yielding to moral weakness, may be released, with a chance of retrieval, while at the same time the hardened criminal, even though the specific crime of which he is convicted may be trivial, may be kept in prison for a considerable or indefinite period, and restrained from the temptation and opportunity to prey upon society.

The results of this experiment in Massachusetts, in the direction of reformatory rather than of merely punitive legislation, will be noted with interest in other states. Should it do well there, it may be widely, perhaps generally, adopted.

An old Buffalo crony of the president has been calling on the latter and was driven out by the proud possessor of "Pretty Prospect," as the president's recent real estate investment at Washington is called, to see the property. Following is his report:

That land is the poorest I ever saw. For worthlessness it beats the sand beach along Lake Erie. I drove with the president out to the place to-day, and he pointed with considerable pride to a field of oats which are trying to ripen in the pelting sun. That poor, red soil showed up through the thin oats as plainly as any background to a picture ever did. "Look at that crop," said he, "there are several acres there." I looked the president hard in the face when he made this remark, and inquired if he thought there were ten bushels in the entire field, and whether he thought it would produce enough straw to fill a bed tick. I filled my handkerchief with the red, unproductive soil and tied it carefully for the purpose of taking it back to Buffalo to exhibit it in Port Hickox saloon, the president's old headquarters, so that the boys can see what kind of a farmer "Grove" is. If "Grove" really paid $21,000 for this lean farm and that stone barn of a house he is a loon.

The conviction and sentence of Cutting to one year's imprisonment for contempt of court disposes of a noisy adventurer of disreputable antecedents. After retracting the alleged libel upon his rival, Medina, on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, he crossed to the American bank and republished the charge, with denunciations of the court officials. When he returned to his home on the Mexican side he was arrested and charged before an alcalde with the offense. He then stated that as the libel had been written and reprinted in America he could not recognize the jurisdiction of the court and would not answer any questions. The legal question is whether the Mexican officials have jurisdiction in a libel case when the publication is made on foreign territory. The Mexican court not only claims jurisdiction on the ground that the journal in which the libel appeared was circulated on both sides of the river, but on the ground that Cutting, while an American citizen, had rights of domicile on Mexican soil and could be prosecuted for contempt of court independently of the facts relating to the libel case.

Ohio has a commission of forestry, which has just published its first annual report. A few of the facts about Ohio woods are these: In 1853 there were 13,991,426 acres of forest in that state, and in 1884 less than one-third of this forest area remained. Thirty years had wrought the havoc. In the past few years the cutting of forest has averaged 100,000 acres a year. At that rate, another generation would see only scanty remains of former magnificence. Moreover, the surviving acres are frequently in poor condition. The falling off in quality has almost kept pace with the decrease in acreage. Though Ohio is comparatively a new state, she has but 1.35 acres of forest to each inhabitant against Prussia's 1.40 for each inhabitant. But Ohio has no mountains to be the nurseries of forests, and her lands have been denuded of trees that they might bear food for the people. Here in the Pacific Northwest we have vast quantities of timber to destroy, but our mountains will always hold timber enough.

The philosopher of the Boston Advertiser has discovered, or thinks he has discovered some occult relation between anarchist bombs and beer. He remarks the undoubted coincidence which other readers of the reports of the Chicago trials have observed, that "at every point in the examination of witnesses the beverage of malt and hops froths merrily alongside of dynamite and gaspipe bombs," and that "at each step of the inquiry the mild tonic is made to appear as the sustenance and inspiration of the wildest projects." "Unless beer is relieved from the suspicion which must fall upon it," this philosopher concludes, "social reformers will be driven to regard whisky as the less harmful beverage."

The water trouble in Colorado is as troublesome as in California, and there is a demand for special legislation on the subject in the former as in the latter state. The larger part of Colorado lies just east of the Rocky mountains and is watered by the South Platte, Arkansas and Rio Grande rivers, which have been very shallow during the present summer—so much so that after the mining companies and irrigating associations have drawn off their supplies through ditches there is no water left for the cattle ranges in the eastern and southern parts of the state.

Fortunate is the poet who doesn't live too long. The news that Tennyson has written several new poems, the most notable of which is a continuation of "Locksley Hall," the hero "reappearing a broken down man of 80, with modified views of life and liberty," is calculated to fill the admirers of the poet as he was with apprehension. For a worthy continuance of "Locksley Hall," says the Boston Herald, there needs to be a continuance of the powers which produced that noble poem, and that cannot be.

The president recently threatened to "call out the troops." Members of congress were begging him for offices for friends, and to one of them he finally said: "If you congressmen don't leave here as soon as you adjourn, I will call to my aid a squad of soldiers and have every one of you driven out of the city." The story is told by a letter writer. Perhaps it isn't true!

The price of silver has declined to the lowest point yet recorded in the London market, viz.: 42¼ pence per ounce. At this figure the metal in our silver dollar is worth only 72½ cents in gold. If our silver and gold coins were to pass at their bullion value as international commercial money, gold would be at a premium of 38 per cent.

A correspondent who evidently has some interest in fish traps, or "pound nets," as he chooses to call them, in Baker's bay protests against the statement made recently that these traps injure the channels near the mouth of the river. We have is from competent authority that the traps do injure the channels. Unquestionably they check the currents and thereby cause them to drop their burden of silt or sand. It is the theory of a pilot of intelligence and long experience at the bar that one of the causes of the change of base of Sand island is the checking of the currents in Baker's bay by the traps or "pounds," of which there are a great number.

Agricultural bureau statistics show that the "sheep population" of the United States increased from 35,192,000 in 1880, to 50,360,243 in 1885. The product in the Eastern states materially decreased during the five years, but in the Western and Southwestern states there was marked increase—Texas reporting 7,538,000 in 1885 against only 2,411,000 in 1880.

Two things are making life a burden for a paper at Tacoma. One is the fact that a tea ship which came to Portland last week wasn't wrecked at the mouth of the Columbia river and cargo and all hands lost; the other, that Tacoma is forced to call on the hated Chinaman to construct her railroad. Such an unhappy world as it is!

At the treasury department, under the present administration, there has been rapid redemption of gold certificates. The amount outstanding now is less than $75,000,000. One year ago there were $126,000,000 of these certificates in circulation.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

Minnie Hawk has gone to Baden-Baden to sing for the empress of Germany. She will return to America in August.

Ex-United States Minister John A. Bingham, now living at Cadiz, Ohio, is in the field for congress in the eighteenth district again.

Ex-Senator Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio, says he is "simply a ghost waiting on the banks of the river Styx for the summons to cross."

Governor Alger, of Michigan, says he is not a candidate for re-election, and would not accept a United States senatorship if it was flung at him.

Senator Cockrell is confident that he will have enough friends in the next Missouri legislature to insure his re-election as United States senator.

The election of General Gordon for governor of Georgia is conceded, and there will be no opposition from either the republicans or independents.

In discussing Ohio politics, the other day, ex-Senator Thurman said Mr. Sherman would be able to secure the Ohio delegation to the republican national convention. Mr. Blaine was probably the second choice of the Ohio delegation. The ex-senator also defended Gen. Logan against the attacks of Murat Halstead.

Nathaniel H. R. Dawson, whom the president nominated to succeed Mr. Eaton as United States commissioner of education, is a native of Selma, Ala., and is about 55 years old. He is a lawyer by profession, a man of liberal education, and has been for many years a prominent and active factor in Alabama politics. During the war he held several commands in the Confederate service, and as captain in the Fourth Alabama participated in the first battle of Bull Run.

A Cruel Joke of the War.
Atlanta Constitution.

Col. John R. Towers, principal keeper of the penitentiary, aided and abetted in one of the most cruel jokes of the war. The Federals were leisurely firing shells into some Confederate works, and the bombs were falling and bursting in such uncomfortable nearness that the soldiers had dug holes in the ground and were hiding as best they could. The colonel and some friends got hold of an unexploded shell and stuffed it full of fuse. When the next report was heard the fuse was touched off, and after a moment the bomb was dropped into the mouth of one of the "gopher" holes where several soldiers were sheltered. "Zip-zip-zip-z-z-z-zip-zip-zip!" went the fuse for several minutes. Howl after howl went up as the soldiers expected to be blown into atoms. After a time the sputtering fuse burned out and things quieted down.

Neal Dow's Great Act.
New York World.

Neal Dow, the great cold water advocate of Maine, has opened his campaign for the prohibition party, and has actually assailed Blaine and the republican leaders in a speech of great vehemence. The probabilities are that before the election takes place Dow's entire party will be chained to the rear end of the republican chariot, with Mr. Blaine as driver.

Who Cares for the Tories?
Mobile Register.

The proposition of the New York World to have American admirers of Mr. Gladstone honor the great leader with a souvenir of his great struggle for home rule in Ireland, has awakened the wrath of the tory press in London. But who cares for the tory press in London in this country?

TO CAPITALISTS.

SALEM, Or., Aug. [illegible]

The City of Salem, Oregon, under special authority from the State Legislature, has determined to issue sixty Municipal Bonds of the denomination of five hundred dollars each for the purpose of raising funds towards constructing a bridge across the river forming its west boundary. Said bonds are to be made payable in gold coin of the United States fifty years after the date thereof, with interest in like coin at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, to be paid semi-annually.

The bonds will be sold for gold coin to the highest bidder, at not less than the par value thereof, and the purchase price thereof will be required on or before the 15th day of October, 1886.

Sealed bids therefor will be received by the City Recorder at his office in said city, until 2 o'clock P. M., September 21, 1886. You are respectfully invited to submit a bid for said bonds.

For the information of non-resident capitalists, the undersigned respectfully represents: That the City of Salem is the county seat of Marion County and the Capital of the State of Oregon. It contains about six thousand inhabitants of a permanent character like those of Eastern towns. Its growth is steady and sound, and it is free from debt. The last assessment for municipal taxation shows $1,700,000 property (at a low valuation), over and above indebtedness.
W. W. SKINNER,
Mayor of the City of Salem, Or.
CHAS. W. BOWIE, Recorder of the City of Salem, Or.

Business men let your families go to the seaside and board at Freiman's, for it is just the same as home cooking. If it don't taste like a home, you will surely be satisfied. Oak street, between Front and First.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

ARRIVAL OF THE COLUMBIA.—There was a large crowd at the steamship dock yesterday to witness the landing of the passengers of the steamship Columbia. She made fast to her dock a few minutes after 1 P M and a moment later the passengers began to disembark. There were considerably over 400 of them but they were all safely on the wharf in less than half an hour. Among them were many Grand Army men from the East. Some of them were very anxious to proceed and about twenty made a break for the ferry and got across just as the Atlantic express halted in East Portland. Capt. Jones of the ferry blew his whistle as a signal to the train to wait and those Eastern men scampered up the ferry slip like deer and succeeded in getting on board the cars. That is what may be called making close connection, but what any one wants to come to Oregon for to get through it in that style without sampling our climate or looking at our scenery is difficult to imagine. Probably they all cut off a hunk of climate when they stopped for dinner at Bonneville and took it along with them. The passengers although crowded were made as comfortable as possible and were well pleased with the attention they received. In the steerage carpets were laid and extra beds furnished same as in the cabin and many cabin passengers lodged there. In the social hall mattresses were laid for fifteen ladies. Five tables were set which kept the waiters going all day long and ninety four persons were accommodated at each sitting. The steward Mr Hill handled his forces like a general. There were two stewardesses who were kept busy it is needless to say. The Queen of the Pacific left San Francisco one hour ahead of the Columbia and was passed by the Columbia off Point Arena. The Columbia slowed down in a fog and next morning the ships were close together and kept near each other all the way to the bar. The Columbia crossed in at 5 30 yesterday morning. She had a full freight and the largest number of cabin passengers since the days of the Great Republic.

COMING COLONIES OF IMMIGRANTS.—The locators for the Welsh land company colony returned to this city from a visit to some of their countrymen in Clackamas county Saturday, and under the auspices of the state board of immigration start this morning out into the valley and southern Oregon. They are in search of 10 000 acres of land for the settlement of about 120 families. In addition to what information the state board furnished these people before they left Ohio they have been provided with every possible help to enable them to make a full examination of every part of Western and Southern Oregon. They will investigate the eastern part of the state on their return. This is one of the colonies reported by the board last winter. A second was a colony of about 100 families from Southern Missouri, and the representatives Messrs Ault and Hofford arrived by the steamer yesterday, and will go out into the interior of the state this afternoon. Before leaving home these gentlemen and their friends were favorably impressed with the report from the western part of Lane county, a portion of Douglas and the western part of Benton county. All these points will be visited during the journey just now undertaken. This colony is already formed and the people intend to start West in September. The third colony is from Northumberland county, Penn, and Mr Higgins and his sub agents, locators and agents will start out to view the state early the coming week. The state board has only to announce the arrival of a colony agent from Texas, San Saba county, to verify the colony statements made last winter and spring. Messrs Ault and Hofford inform the state board that if they succeed in getting the climate and soil here which they are in search of the exodus from their part of Missouri will be 1000 instead of 100 families. So far they are very much pleased with what they find.

NO JURISDICTION OVER A ROAD.—There is a matter concerning both the county of Multnomah and the city of Portland which seems to require legislation. It came up in the council the other night in the shape of a bill for lumber to repair a county road within the city limits. This is the road coming into town by the [illegible] lake. When the city limits were extended they of course took in a piece of this road, but it appears that the road still belongs to the county. It is in a bad state of repair and needs looking after. But the council refused to pay for repairing it on the ground that by doing so they would seem to assume control of it and might be held liable for damages caused by any mishap on it, and there is liability of such mishap at any time. It seems strange at first glance that the county should have control of a road within the city limits, but such is the case. The road was built by the county and has never been opened or laid out or improved as a street by the city. This road is the principal approach to the city from the north and should be kept in good repair. The county does not appear to look properly after it and it would seem as if the city should take some steps to acquire possession of it and make a street of it and put it in repair. It might be proper to have the law so amended that when the city extended itself it would assume possession and control of the county roads included within the extension. But perhaps this is not feasible, in which case the requisite amount of repairs should be paid out as speedily as possible and the approaches to the city not left in an unsafe condition.

ORNAMENTAL HITCHING POSTS.—Some time ago the council caused the swinging signs which had become such a nuisance to be taken down and swings to be removed from the principal streets to the great improvement of the appearance of the city. Ever since parties have been trying various schemes for supplying the place of the swinging signs. Petitions are constantly being presented to the council for permission to put up posts with all sorts of things on them, lamps, clocks, drug mortars, bottles, etc. These petitions for ornamental hitching posts are growing more numerous and a line will have to be drawn somewhere. An ornamental hitching post is both useful and ornamental, but when they become as thick as telephone poles and are ornamented with beer kegs, iron safes, crockery ware, cook stoves and all kinds of merchandise used by the parties who obtain permission to put them up there is likely to be trouble. The horses of this town seem to have a great liking for pulling down awning posts and hitching posts, and some day when half a dozen horses run away with as many hitching posts ornamented with red hot stoves they will create a sensation.

MUSIC AT UNSEASONABLE HOURS.—Considerable effort is being made by interested parties to defeat the ordinance now before the judiciary committee to put a stop to music being played in saloons after 10 o'clock in the evening. It is quite certain that none but interested parties will make any objection to the passage of the ordinance. Visitors to beer halls should be able to get their fill of [illegible] and music by 10 o'clock, and be willing after that hour to either go home or [illegible] their beer in silence for the rest of the night and let other orderly citizens in the vicinity sleep in peace. Some saloon men who employ a band [illegible] Saloon keepers who [illegible] enticed away by the music [illegible] this ordinance passed. As long as the row about the matter is confined to saloon men the general public will not care how it gets and [illegible] that the nuisance may be abolished [illegible] the snare drum and the toot of the trombone [illegible] sounds for the [illegible] peace of orderly citizens.

TO-MORROW'S EXCURSION TO YAQUINA BAY.—[illegible] starts from [illegible] and Front streets Tuesday at 6 A M [illegible] round trip $5 50 for all above 12 years of age [illegible] Tickets on sale at [illegible] corner F and Front streets from [illegible] A M and from 1 to 5 P M [illegible]

INCREASE IN FINE ROADSTERS.—During the last year a great many well-to-do Portlanders have invested in fine roadsters. The number of [illegible] on the streets [illegible] Eleventh [illegible] and North [illegible] streets seventy five or a hundred [illegible] drivers [illegible] fine match teams [illegible] more double teams [illegible] the year 1886 [illegible] a decent drive over at least one of the [illegible] roads leading to Portland.

GRAND ARMY RECEPTION.—The committee [illegible] for the reception to Gen Sherman and visiting comrades who are expected to leave San Francisco on [illegible] steamer [illegible] under command of Capt [illegible] Mr [illegible] Hon J F Caples will make the address of welcome. A new and charming [illegible] will be given by Miss Denny [illegible] Gen Sher[illegible] [illegible] will respond until 10 o'clock [illegible] for the social dance will take [illegible] There will be a good floor, electric lights [illegible]

AT THE PARK.—There was a large number of visitors at the city park yesterday, nearly 4000. [illegible] played in the park and the sprinkling [illegible] The [illegible] rendered a most excellent programme and the [illegible] pieces played by the [illegible] string band, so that there was [illegible] The keeper Mr Myers still packs water for his flowers, which are blooming finely in spite of continued dry weather, and are much admired.

THE RUMORED O R & N LEASE.—Mr Elijah Smith president of the O R & N Co returned last night from San Francisco by the Columbia. Answering the inquiry of an OREGONIAN reporter as to the reported lease of the O R & N property to the Union Pacific Mr Smith said that he knew nothing of any such transaction or of any negotiations which are likely to lead to such a result. So far as he knows the relations between the two companies are just what they were one year ago.

RACES YESTERDAY.—At City View park yesterday there was a fair attendance. The three-eighths running race was won by Why Not, Jennie L second. In the trot, three in five, there were four entries, Lady Rockwood, Lady Scott, Fleeta and M S. Lady Rockwood won the race, taking the first, fourth and fifth heats. Fleeta won the second and M S the third heat. Best time, 2 55.

U S CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the case of the New England Mortgage Security company vs. Jennie Bader and her husband.

A STROLL UP THE RIVER.

The Towns of Sellwood and Willsburg—Some Fine Wood Carving.

On Saturday an OREGONIAN reporter started out for a visit to our neighboring town of Sellwood. The swift and handsome steamer named for the town landed him at the wharf there in a very short time. The town of Sellwood is a mile long east and west and there is a good planked sidewalk all the way. There are many cozy cottages along the street and some houses of considerable pretensions with gardens in which the beautiful and useful are combined in the shape of flowers and vegetables. Sellwood has made great progress for a place of its age and will in a few years be a favorite suburban place of residence. After passing through Sellwood the town of Willsburg comes in sight and the lumber yards and buildings of Shindler's extensive furniture factory, so the stroll was continued in that direction. After loitering on the bridge over a creek full of minnows and wishing that fishing tackle had been brought along the factory was reached. They have a very sensible plan there of putting in half an hour extra for five days in the week and getting off early Saturday, so the factory was just shutting down and an inspection of it was deferred.

The foreman exhibited with pardonable pride a piece of wood carving, the work of J Holer, one of the employes. It was an oval picture frame suitable for a common photograph. The frame was surrounded with two sprays of roses, leaves and buds carved in the most beautiful manner out of a solid block of wood. The veins in the leaves and the buds were wonderful, the rose leaves appearing as delicate as in nature. It seemed impossible that wood could be cut so thin and hold together. Inquiry elicited the information that it was pear tree wood which had been boiled for several hours. Such work is seldom seen in this country and the workman is entitled to be called an artist. Another workman in the factory, Mr Dittmer, has been employing his leisure in making an inlaid work box. It is formed of many different kinds of the finest woods known to the cabinet maker. The box is of tulip wood highly polished, in the sides and cover of which are panels of ebony in which are inlaid flowers. In the cover is a bouquet of lilies of the valley, forget-me-nots and other flowers. The bells of the lilies are of white holly, the forget-me-nots of the same wood dyed blue, the leaves and blossoms of the other flowers of different kinds of wood, and on the ends and sides are long sprays of bleeding heart, the green leaves and red blossoms all so natural that it is hard to believe that they are not painted instead of being inlaid. Inside the cover is a mirror framed in carving of most beautiful workmanship. There are cunningly devised secret drawers and boxes arranged so that one not in the secret could ever find them. Among the woods of which the box is composed are tulip wood, ebony, ash, amaranth, mahogany, rosewood and white holly. This box and the carved wreath should be exhibited at the Mechanics' fair this fall. In the house where a number of the workmen board were a number of wall brackets beautifully carved of black walnut and Spanish cedar.

On the way from the factory to the station an old Frenchman was met who had a bushel basket full of crawfish captured in the mill pond near. He has made the same kind of a haul there every week this summer. He said that in his native land the crawfish were much more plentiful than here and described how he used to catch thousands in a trap made of brush and baited with offal. When asked why he did not use such a trap here he shrugged his shoulders and said the crawfish would be taken by others. This seemed a sort of insinuation against the honesty of Oregonians as compared with that of Frenchmen and he was about to explain himself when the train thundered up, and he lost the opportunity.

GRAND ARMY VISITORS.

Those of our visitors who arrived on yesterday's steamer holding return tickets that do not read via the Oregon Short Line and who may desire to return via that route can have their tickets exchanged by paying $10. The Oregon Short Line is the only route that will take passengers through any portion of Oregon, it being the only transcontinental route that have any portion of their line in the state. A visit to Oregon is not complete without seeing that portion east of the Cascade mountains, particularly the great wheat growing region around Pendleton.

The Grande Ronde valley, the gem of Oregon, and in which are situated the towns of La Grande and Union, and the great stock and grain producing Powder valley in which Baker City is located. Beyond Baker City and to the Snake river the Short Line traverses the Burnt River canyon, the great mining region of Eastern Oregon, placer mines in active operation being in sight from the passing train. Some of our best and finest scenery is found along this route. The great Columbia river, Multnomah falls, the Cascades and Dalles of the Columbia, the Blue mountains and many other points of interest. The Short Line forms an entirely new route to the East from Portland, joining the Union Pacific main line east of Ogden and over a thousand miles east of Portland. It follows the Snake River valley from Huntington through Idaho, traversing the rich Boise basin, in which Boise City is located; also Shoshone falls, the coming rival of Niagara. Farther on the road crosses the Snake river at American falls, passing through the great Bear river valley in which Soda Springs are situated. The waters of these springs contain valuable medicinal properties and recently bottling works have been established there, it being intended to supply the country with this mineral water, which is pronounced to be far superior to any yet discovered. Side trips may be made from Shoshone to the great Wood river mining district, or into the Yellowstone park via Beaver canyon, the most picturesque and best route approaching the park. Ogden and Salt Lake City are reached within [illegible] miles from the Short Line at its junction with the Utah and Northern at Pocatello [illegible] to Ogden and only [illegible] to Salt Lake City.

There will also take passengers through Denver, from which point various side trips may be made at small cost to all the prominent and famous resorts of Colorado, thence homeward either via Kansas City or Omaha.

The Oregon Short Line was completed two years ago and it forms the shortest and most direct route to the East. Its track is smooth and laid with steel rails. Elegant Pullman palace drawing room sleeping cars, the best of first class coaches and conveniently arranged emigrant sleeping cars are run through from Portland to the Missouri river without change in one hundred and eighty-seven hours, leaving Portland at 3 P M daily. All tickets are good via Ogden and Denver to Kansas City or Omaha. It is worth all you [illegible] to take this route east. All details regarding rates, exchange of tickets etc. can be had upon application to B Campbell, general agent, No 1 Washington street, this city.

THANKING THE COLUMBIA'S OFFICERS.

A meeting of passengers was held on the deck of the steamship Columbia yesterday while coming up the river.

The meeting was called to order by Henry Hain of Wisconsin. On motion of J C Griffith of Danbury, W W Stetson of Auburn, Maine, was appointed a committee of one to express the sentiments of the passengers to the officers and crew of the steamship Columbia. He made the following report which was adopted:

COLUMBIA RIVER, Aug 8.

The passengers on the steamship Columbia of the O R & N Co, sailing from San Francisco Aug 5th, [illegible] desire to express to Capt Bolles, Purser Maynard, Steward Hill, stewardesses and all other officers and employes of the steamship their sincere thanks for their courtesies as well as their constant efforts to add to the pleasures of the voyage and reduce its discomforts to the minimum. The splendid cuisine, the absence of unpleasant odors so common in most steamers and the perfect discipline prevailing among the crew and waiters have characterized the voyage throughout and render it one of the pleasantest sections of a long journey. As every promise has been more than redeemed by the officers of the Columbia we cheerfully and heartily commend this steamer to the traveling public as one of the safest, best equipped and most thoroughly reliable we have ever patronized.

W W STETSON,
Chairman of Committee on Resolutions.

BRIEF MENTION.

Big crowds left for the coast Saturday.

Change of bill at the Tivoli this evening.

Free lecture at Masonic hall this evening.

Miss Jeffreys Lewis at New Market to-night.

Regular meeting of the board of trade to-night.

The Olympian arrived up from Astoria at 10 o'clock this morning, having made the trip in five hours and fifty five minutes. This is the best time she has yet made on the up trip.

It is reported that the swindler who obtained some blank drafts purporting to be for the Albany, Or, bank and with them swindled several Montana parties was arrested recently in St Paul and made a full confession.

The change in the weather is decidedly for the better. The nice cool breeze seems very pleasant after the hot days we have had. The faint attempt at a shower the other morning gives promise of a much needed rain in the near future.

There was a row on First street near Washington early yesterday morning. Some fellow had been playing billiards with Tom Ward the pugilist, and after losing four games Tom was obliged to pay for them. So a row ensued when they got on the street, and Ward at last got a lick at the fellow and kicked him through a window. Yells of Police and quick curtain.

THE STAGE.

"CLOTILDE" TO-NIGHT.—Miss Jeffreys Lewis will appear this evening in her late success "Clotilde." Miss Lewis is well known as one of the greatest actresses of the present day and she certainly has no equal in her peculiar line. The cast is one of the best and strongest supporting any star for some time in Portland. The scenery is new and the costumes elegant, and it has been the aim of the management to make this a notable and successful opening of the season. The sale thus far has been large and not only indicates a [illegible] through the entire week. "Clotilde" will be produced until Friday, when "Forget Me Not" will be produced by request of many people who have seen Miss Lewis in this play.

Grand Army Papers.

An extra supply of the Grand Army edition of the San Francisco Chronicle and Call just received by C H Wilcox, 150 First and southwest corner First and Oak.

Auction Sale To-day.

The handsome fixtures of the New York tea store will be sold at 10 o'clock this morning by Gilman & Co; also horse cart etc.

Grimes house, Clatsop, open for the season. Improved by addition, with 30 hard-finished rooms. Terms, $2 day; $10 per week.

A CLOSE GAME.

The Willamettes Defeat the Idaho Light Weights by a Score of 16 to 15

Yesterday's game at the Oaks had the merit of being close and exciting. There was some heavy batting on both sides, a little sharp fielding and a great deal of [illegible] base running. Henry Thompson played [illegible] for the visitors and led in the batting, getting two singles and a two bagger. [illegible] Devine pitched two innings, then [illegible] for two, then Voris two and [illegible] two [illegible] Tom Parrott could not throw his down [illegible] because neither Carson nor Wills could hold [illegible] The visitors made 13 hits with a total of 15 [illegible]

REPLY TO MRS DUNIWAY.

PORTLAND, Aug [illegible], 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Mrs Abigail Scott Duniway has replied to my article, "Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic," published in THE OREGONIAN of the [illegible]. To begin with, I wish to state that I am not in the habit of holding any controversy through the newspapers, as I well know that as a rule open discussions lead to unpleasantness, which I shall avoid under all circumstances. But as Mrs Duniway has so kindly endeavored to set me right through the science of my profession I shall attempt to reply to a few points upon which we seem to differ. Yes, I do believe that the Sunday law would be enforced if the prohibition party was in power. But as it now stands the "outs" and "ins" have no relation to this question, for whisky (as I said before) is the controlling power with both parties. Twenty five years ago, when the abolition party was fighting slavery, as the prohibition party is fighting whisky to-day, the democratic and whig parties did not interfere with the constitutional rights of slavery, but when the young, vigorous and then pure republican party got hold of the reins of the state [illegible] prohibited the accursed traffic in human flesh, but [illegible] it from our country forever. We have no [illegible] whatever about abolition. It will be so [illegible] as a natural consequence when prohibition has been established.

Mrs Duniway claims that I have, as a physician, overlooked the conditions and causes of drunkenness. This cause of drunkenness and the means of removing it seems to be the great stumbling block between us. I contend that the cause of drunkenness and its concomitants are due to alcoholic poisons and the immediate source is the saloon. Therefore I say remove the cause, cut off the supply. Yes, I should treat an eruption of the kind through the system if the eruption depended [illegible] I should inquire into the cause of this diseased blood. When we are called to a typhoid or malarious patient we look to the sewerage and the surroundings as well as to the malady. We say to a patient we cannot protect you against a contagious or non-contagious disease if you are continually being exposed to the poisonous influences that create it. I should not expect to be able to cure that common eruptive disease scabies (itch) if the patient continued to live with a family where the other members were likewise afflicted. If I am called to see a babe that has just recovered from a convulsion, and find its skin hot and dry, perhaps covered with a rash, with tongue coated and bowels bloated, I will look for a cause, and my first attention will be given to the gums. If I find that obstructed teeth have produced these serious conditions I will give the desired relief by removing the tension, by severing the delicate tissues and sensitive nerves, thus assisting nature and giving her a chance of performing the cure, which in seven cases out of ten she can do without other aid.

And so with the poor drunkard: remove the cause, cut off the source of supply, and nature begins [illegible] the greatest of all physicians [illegible] I contend that the saloon (which includes the contents for sale) is the true source and cause of drunkenness, and the thousands that depend upon it. Not the manifestations of disease [illegible] and symptoms, but the primary cause. Therefore I say attack this at once, cut it off and [illegible] We have been treating symptoms and [illegible] long enough. This reminds us that [illegible] I still contend that the source [illegible] the demand, that the appetite for the supply. Therefore it is the root and branch of the great evil.

[illegible] England's greatest statesman has said, "Alcohol has cost England more than war, famine and pestilence," and unless we find a way to conquer this enemy it will destroy us. The moral and temperance forces with all their [illegible] and faithful work during [illegible] years have seen the whisky power gradually but constantly increasing. During the last forty years the consumption of this accursed poison has increased from three gallons to each man, woman and child to the enormous amount of twelve gallons. [illegible] these startling realities as these [illegible] have taught our temperance people that same important lesson that was long ago learned by the abolition party, that the moral teaching must be added law, and behind this law must stand a loyal party who will enforce the law for the defense and protection of that for which it was enacted. Time will settle the question as to the great issue that our nation will be called upon to decide in the near future.

I believe that prohibition will carry with it woman suffrage, and woman suffrage will prove to be a panacea for many ills from which our nation now suffers. Notwithstanding, woman suffrage and prohibition have been my hobbies for twenty years, yet I should not be willing to see either fail by tacking one upon the other, [illegible] it is my belief that they [illegible] and should strengthen each other by uniting their forces.

GEN. GRANT'S MEMOIRS.

Long Branch Letter in Boston Herald.

When the general agreed with the publisher to prepare this remarkable work, he received a check for $1000 to bind the bargain. Since then Mrs Grant has had paid to her by publishers' check $200,000, and early in August will receive a further payment of over $200,000. The edition of 325,000 volumes already issued is nearly exhausted, and further orders are [illegible] to make necessary the ensuing fall of the printing and issuing of another considerable edition. These figures do not include the foreign sales, which are unquestionably large. Mr F L Webster, of the publishing firm, is now in Europe attending to affairs at that end of the line. The simple integrity and direct honesty of Gen Grant's character and dealings were strikingly illustrated by his action in regard to this book. When he determined to undertake the task, and public interest had been aroused by the announcement of such intention, he was approached by Mr Conant, for the Harper Bros, with an offer of $50,000 outright for the copyright. Gen Grant was advised by his business friends whom he consulted, and on whose judgment he was disposed to rely, to accept this apparently liberal offer. The general himself, however, decided to decline, and upon the honorable ground that he was not willing to accept any more than fair compensation, that could not, he argued, be established except by a royalty based upon the sales of the book after its issue. Yet, through this scrupulous feeling, Mrs Grant and the entire family have again been made wealthy, the earning having already nearly reached the sum of $400,000, with a possible $150,000 more in sight. This is, indeed, a striking illustration of one who worked "better than he knew." As it is entirely the product of Gen Grant's brain, expressing so clearly, yet modestly, the mighty actions of which he was a leading agent, not even the most envious or jaundiced can find in their brain a scintilla of envy for the bountiful good fortune which has come to Mrs Grant to make blessed the days of her widowhood. It is not alone the material benefit it brings, it is far more the feeling of his protecting care and unselfish, loving toil, which is strongly emphasized in every proof of the great success of Gen Grant's memoirs.

THE CUP THAT CHEERS.

The Immense Amount of Poor Tea Consumed by Ignorant Caucasians.

London Standard.

If the tea trade is ceasing to be as profitable as it used to be, the tea drinker is also well aware that the quality of the stuff sold is no longer what it was. Japan, India and Ceylon send us very sound teas, though the English palate is still to be fully educated to a liking for these brands. China, which at one time had a monopoly of the supply, is falling off. It has still rare samples for those who can pay for them. But few buyers being at hand, the importers naturally prefer to minister to the coarser tastes of the less opulent public. Accordingly, every year seems to bring cheaper and cheaper and worse and worse teas into England. Everybody wants something that costs little, and after a course of cheap teas, the buyer loses the appetite for good ones. He is even unable to distinguish a first-class from an inferior article. For fifty men who can "talk wine" there is not one who has an educated taste for tea. A well-to-do citizen would scorn to ask his guests to drink a bottle of the acrid vintage, which is associated with the premier's name, and will instantly send from the table a bottle of corked wine. Yet that same host will himself drink, and offer to his friends, tea which a coolie in Canton or Yokohama would toss into the street. The housewife who considers 3 shillings and 6 pence a sufficient price for the best of tea would be astonished to hear of Japanese growths worth between £3 and £4, or to be told that in Russia opulent families rarely drink anything under 10 and 12 shillings. Of the 70,000,000 pounds of Indian tea sold every year in England, fully 40,000,000 pounds are of a higher quality than anything received from China, but people prefer the poorer sorts, simply because they are supposed to be cheaper. A little more extravagance in this direction would be excusable. Economy in tea drinking is wastefulness. It would certainly not ruin many people did they contract a taste for high priced Souchong or develop a weakness for the best Pekoe. It takes a good time to consume a pound of tea at 10 or 12 shillings, and the health of the drinker might at the week's end be better if he had consumed a bottle of champagne a day, while his pocket would undoubtedly be fuller.

Upheaval in Colorado.

MONTROSE, Col, Aug 3.—During the past ten days the rumor has been rife regarding some strange changes on a large tract of land on the Cimarron river. To get at the facts a Tribune-Republican representative visited the scene. Leaving Cimarron station on the Denver & Rio Grande on horseback, a ride of nine miles brought me to the house of Samuel Wells. From here a north ward two miles brought me to the scene which was first discovered on Sunday, July 25, by a man hunting cattle.

The country, which was naturally hilly and broken, with a heavy covering of trees, was found to have been visited by an internal eruption, which had displaced a tract about two miles square, causing a large lake to lose its water and its bed to stand at an angle of 45 degrees. Where there had been hills, valleys now appeared, while the valleys were upheaved into hills. Trees stand in all conceivable shapes, some of them being reversed with their roots freed from dirt, standing skyward, while the leaves and branches were buried in the debris. The whole section is so much changed as to make it unknown to those who heretofore were acquainted with it.

A party of scientists are now on the ground taking observations and photographing the principal points of interest.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

OREGON

A Chinese prisoner in the Grant county jail committed suicide last Tuesday morning by hanging himself.

At Grant's Pass there are 10 residences and buildings used for residences. There are fifty one business houses all told.

Emanuel Lowe, with a party of nine, arrived at Independence recently, from Davis county, Mo., having driven through since May.

J J Foil's barn at Springfield, Lane county, together with several tons of hay, oats, harness, etc., burned Wednesday night. Loss, $500.

A J Chapman, of Wilbur, Southern Oregon, had the misfortune to lose a fine barn by fire on the night of the 29th. The railroad station and the rest of the town was only saved by the determined efforts of the people. The fire was evidently incendiary.

A son of S B Withington, aged about 10 years, was drowned at Cottage Grove in the west fork of the Coast Fork Wednesday. A party of gentlemen going bathing in the evening noticed the clothing of a boy on the bank, and after searching found the body in the river.

In Josephine county the peach crop is extremely light. Apples are about half a crop. The grape crop is good. Berries have borne lightly. Plums and prunes will yield lightly. Vegetables, melons, corn and other products in favorable localities will yield heavy crops. Grain and hay is fully up to the average.

WASHINGTON.

The assessable property of Spokane county foots up $3,250,000.

At the last election 1031 votes were cast in South Walla Walla and 817 in North Walla Walla.

The assessment roll for Walla Walla county this year foots up to $5,813,032, $19,132 more than last year.

Spokane is building ore cars for the Spokane Smelting and Mining company, and the Review remarks: "It looks like mining industry to see this class of work being done in our city."

Tunnel city is now illuminated by electric lights and is lively at all hours of the day and night. One can hear the whoop of laborers under the influence of the ardent at any hour.

IDAHO.

The Bellevue races have been postponed to September, 7, 8, 9 and 10, with a four days meeting, and the purses have been raised to $4500—trotting $1500, trotting and pacing $900, running $2300. Entries to trotting, pacing and two-year-old stakes close August 9.

Good photos at most reasonable prices. Thwaite's, 167 First street. Cabinets, $4. Work guaranteed.

THE OLD POPULAR STAND

Theories are no good. People of this age demand practical demonstrations. Sound resources, progressive institutions bear abundant fruit. Every thinking person must necessarily be convinced that business firms that buy solely from manufacturers, and do their own importing, are by these identical circumstances better able to make close prices to the consumer than merchants who buy from the jobber and the importer. This is the reason why many struggle hard to hold their own; others lose their grip, and the few grow in spite of the most adverse circumstances.

Our Mr A B STEINBACH will return soon from New York, where he has been superintending the manufacture of our Fall and Winter stock. These goods will soon be here, and we must have room to place them. Consequently we offer

WHEAT—Foreign markets inactive, cargoes being in both light offering and scant request. New York and Chicago very quiet and San Francisco firmer under better request for shipping. Here receipts are next to nothing and the market is featureless.

FLOUR—Local demands fair and easily supplied from stocks. Mills are receiving new wheat in the interior but not grinding.

MILLSTUFF—Firm, with the usual request. Stocks of bran and shorts only sufficient. Jobbing prices show no change.

OATS—None in last night and spot supplies are few. Sellers offer rather sparingly but without effort upon values. Quote new 38@40c, old 40@42c.

POTATOES—Quoted $1 10@1 25 per cental as selling value.

PROVISIONS—Firm throughout, supplies of choice local being very limited. Eastern in good business as last quoted.

DRIED FRUIT—Receipts of local quite free of late, but desirable sorts are scarce.

EGGS—Receipts not large, but the quotation is reduced to 15c. The demand has been lessened by the presence of state product, consumers evidently tiring of buying such.

CHICKENS—In fair request at $3@4 50. Receipts not large.

BUTTER—Good qualities in poor supply and firmer.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Government bonds were dull and unchanged. Until noon the complexion of the stock market was decidedly bullish. Steady gains were made in most of the active list, but on the non-appearance of a bank statement and the loss of legal tenders and decrease of the surplus reserve the bears secured a chance to raid the market, and before 2 o'clock prices had been depressed ⅜@1½ per cent. Support was then given the market and prices became steady. At the opening first prices generally showed a decline of ⅛@⅜ per cent., although a few stocks were higher. The market was quiet, and after a few slight losses advanced to opening figures. The raid of the bears then broke the entire list, Pacific Mail showing a loss of 1¾ per cent. and others smaller amounts. In the last hour, however, the decline was checked, and the market closed generally steady at the lowest figures of the day.

The Mail and Express says: Sales of mining stocks were: Bulwer 90, California & Virginia 40, Navajo 63, Sutro 11, Horn Silver $2 30, Eureka $2 25. The market was dull and featureless.

READING A DIME NOVEL.

Detroit Free Press.

A chap of a bootblack who had made his stake for the day, sat down in the shade on the postoffice steps the other day and pulled a dime novel from his pocket with a grin of great satisfaction. It was a novel about a terrible western desperado, who was pictured on the cover with his hands full of revolvers and his mouth filled with bowie-knives. The boy was thrilled at the sight of the wood cut, and he made haste to begin his reading. He had read only half a page, holding the book in his left hand, when he suddenly clinched his right fist. The medicine was beginning to work.

He read to the bottom of the page, and a look of exultation crept over his face. The hero had probably killed a couple of men, and barricaded himself in a saloon.

During the reading of the next page the boy passed from perfect satisfaction to the deepest anxiety, and he couldn't keep his feet still. The hero was being surrounded by the townspeople, who meant to send up the mercury for him.

Page third was so exciting that the boy began to breathe hard and grow pale and chew on his quid of gum for all he was worth. The hero was probably loading up his weapon, filling up with benzine, and getting ready to perish or die.

Page fourth was a screamer. The boy got up and sat down three different times, and half way down the page he swallowed his quid slick and clean. At the end of the page it was painfully evident that his collar band choked him, for his neck was growing very red.

Page five related how the hero shot down four or five men and made a dash out of the town, firing over his shoulder as he ran. The boy slapped his leg and grinned as if he had found a dollar.

Being afraid that the hero would stub his toe and be overtaken, the boy skipped the next seven or eight pages and caught the hero at bay in the presence of a dozen Indians. His eyes began to bulge out and the sweat to appear, and it was evident that he expected the fur to fly.

The next page was full of bullets and war-whoops. The boy held up his right arm as if sighting a revolver, dodged three arrows and a tomahawk and was just panting for breath when the Indians, or as many of them as were left alive, kindly consented to withdraw and go off after some other sort of mutton.

Again the boy turned over half a dozen leaves, and as he settled down again he gave a start of surprise. The hero had just leaped off a 200-foot precipice and landed safely on his cheek. Then came a proud look of satisfaction as the desperado knifed a couple of grizzlies and licked a panther into insensibility.

The next page was a corker. It was made up of avalanches, cyclones, rattlesnakes, mountain lions, redskins, road agents, Danites and chain-lightning, and after suppressing three yells, four groans and seven shivers of horror, the boy sprang up, pocketed the novel, and muttered to himself as he wiped his damp brow on his elbow:

"By gum! but I can't wait no longer! I've got to go off and steal a banana, or lick a boy, or sass a policeman!"

Republican Campaign in Maine.

Augusta Special, Aug. 1.

The campaign of the republican party will open in this state on the 23d inst. Meetings will be held on that day in each of the sixteen counties of Maine. "Mr. Blaine will take off his coat and go to work with the rest of the campaign speakers this year and will do more speaking than he has done for a long time," said Chairman Manley of the republican committee. There will be only eighteen speaking days during the campaign, and Mr. Blaine will speak somewhere almost every day. The committee has already made twelve assignments for him, four of them in the Second congressional district, where there will be a three-cornered fight.

Rich English Repeaters.

Cable Correspondence New York Herald.

It may interest Americans to know that if a man in England be rich enough he can vote in twenty constituencies. This gives the Tories an enormous advantage. One Church of England parson boasted publicly that he voted at fifteen elections. Nearly all the wealthy men have at least two votes, and a considerable number half a dozen. The Tory majority was made up of these plural votes. A majority of the electors voted for Gladstone and home rule, but the plural votes defeated the popular voice. This system must come to an end. The popular cry for the future should be: "One man, one vote!"

An Oleomargarine Statesman.

Boston Herald (Mugwump).

It is unfortunate that the president must refer the anti-oleomargarine bill, or any other measure of doubtful propriety to Attorney-General Garland for an opinion. Mr. Garland is, no doubt, just as good a lawyer as he ever was, but the people do not have the confidence in him which they felt before the Pan-Electric developments. He is looked upon as a sort of oleomargarine statesman, so to speak—a detected counterfeit. The chief law officer of the government should be another sort of person.

The blood is the source of health. Keep it pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar.

UNITARIANISM.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The Christian Register, in view of the shock produced upon the religious feeling of the country by the recent refusal of the Western Unitarian conference to declare that its purpose of existence is Christian, or even to pronounce its faith in God, has gathered from ministers of the denomination in the West their ideas as to its status and tendency in that wide region It propounded a little catechism covering these points: Is there any decline in theistic belief? Is there any tendency to disown the moral force and spiritual truth received from Jesus Christ? Is there any decline in devotional spirit? Is the tendency positive and constructive? Is the work of Unitarian churches more or less practical and educational than formerly? And, finally could they adopt the following statement of the implication of the Unitarian name: "Unitarianism is that free and progressive development of historic Christianity which aspires to be synonymous with universal ethics and universal religion."

The replies printed by the Register for the most part assent to its own position in the above statement, but they do show that the idea of a personal God is held less strongly. Rev. F. L. Hosmer, of Cleveland, observes "a profound recognition of the realities for which any adequate idea of God must stand." Rev. W. C. Gannett thinks the "realities involved in the idea of God" (the Register's phrase) are held "more strongly and rejoicingly than ever," but "the old insistence on special names or symbols is happily somewhat declining—the natural result of the deepening and enlarging and spiritualizing of a belief." Several ministers speak of "the God idea," which is certainly a different thing from "the idea of a God." Rev. Charles Ellis, of East Saginaw, Mich., says that:

> The old conception of a personal God who, as creator, is out of, over and above the universe, is surely giving away to the larger idea of God in and of the universe, an impersonal, unimpassioned, immanence of power, law, order and evolution.

Rev. N. S. Hogeland, of Greeley, Col., says "there is very little belief in a personal God represented simply as a big man;" "there is a hesitancy in pronouncing the God name," but the realities of "the God idea" are strongly held by all. All these testify to the fact that the idea of God is being so recast in Unitarianism—and we believe not altogether in the west—that the name "God" is feared as conveying a false notion—as the last quoted minister puts it, the notion of "a big man." Anthropomorphism, as this is theologically called, is growing more objectionable to liberal thoughts than agnosticism, and what is preferred is the transcendental idea of the immanence of the divine.

Then as to Jesus, Mr. Gannett does not mention his name at all, but declares that "the tendency to freedom has gone much further; the more such names are insisted on, either explicitly or implicitly, as shibboleths of fellowship, of course the more freedom in a few years results in an age like ours—results, but after pain. And the less they are made essential to the fellowship, the more widely and gratefully they are and will be welcomed, in an age like ours." Mr. Gannett was one of the principal opponents of the declaration of faith in God and Christianity in the recent conference; here he gives his reasons. Some others are more personal in their standpoint. Rev. Edwards P. Gibbs of Grand Haven, Michigan, says clearly:

> As far as morality can be strengthened by the example and teachings of Jesus, and spiritual life revealed through his pure life, there is no doubt about the continued willingness of Unitarians to learn from the one who spake as never man spake before. Jesus is clearly, to a large majority of our western Unitarians, an ideal one of humanity's many noble ideals; a religious teacher, but the grace, the art, the glory of teaching not confined to him. True to theistic ideality, this could not be otherwise.

Dr. J. M. Shaffer, of Keokuk, Ia., a layman, utters Channing's views; is positive in his worship of God as the infinite and loving father, "caring for all his human children;" and believing in Christ as "our great teacher," would "follow his example in all spiritual truth;" recognizes his "most wonderful power over the world of matter and the world of mind;" has a sense of personal approach to God in prayer and does not accept the Register's statement as to the denomination. He is more definite and ardent saying:

> It is not fair to say that our religion is "synonymous with universal ethics and universal religion." Our religion is broader, higher, grander, nobler. It is a religion that believes in God the Father, Jesus Christ the great teacher, and an infinite spirit, in us, above us, around us, ever saying to us: "Come up higher. Do good, be good, get good."

Dr. Shaller expresses the devotional spirit, and although the value of this frame of the soul is recognized, and all of the letters express a confidence that it exists effectually, there is no parallel to his feeling in the rest of them. Mannett, who has much of devoutness in his own nature, "fears that not many Unitarians anywhere enjoy themselves yet in devotional expression." But, he says, "I see the signs of spring out here, and not the fewest signs in what are called the most radical churches." Rev. Mr. Ellis and Rev. Mr. Gibbs both explain why there should be less of the devotional in the West than in the East. Mr Ellis says the Unitarians of the West are largely recruited from people who have suffered from reaction from a "denunciatory sensationalism," and so "there is a tendency to disown Jesus," and a lack of devotion; but he believes that quality will yet grow. Mr. Gibbs says:

> So marked is the change from the atmosphere of orthodox communions, or even from the ordinary eastern society of Unitarians, when is entered the atmosphere of the West, the first impression is, "Here is wanting a devotional spirit;" but, after a maturer judgment, the opinion changes, and a most devout few are found exerting a helpful influence in each society.

The rest of the questions it is easy to fancy the answers to. All agree that Unitarianism in practical, moral and educational work, in constructive character development, leads all the religious bodies. That is the unbroken concensus of the ministers and laymen. The reality of this spirit in Unitarianism is marked by the earnestness and progressive force of its pulpit utterances and by its active share in reform and humanitarian measures in all parts of the country. But it is a grave question whether Unitarians can afford, in the very interest of this important characteristic, to lose the advantage of saying right out before the world, "I believe in God," and recognizing Jesus Christ in so many words as the supreme influence for elevating the world.

A DAY AT THE VATICAN.

Special Cable to the New York Herald.

The Daily News has been interviewing some people connected with the vatican touching the pope's habits. In July, it seems, he celebrates mass in his private chapel at 6 A. M. At 7 A. M. he takes breakfast, consisting of chocolate and milk, with sometimes raw eggs beaten up in it. Immediately after breakfast he receives visits from members of his court. Cardinal Jacobini reports to him what has occurred in the world and gives him an account of the letters received on papal business. Besides these official letters others arrive in great numbers from all parts of the world. At 1 o'clock the pope dines, and afterward he retires to his private room until the heat of the day is passed. At 6 P. M. he repairs to the vatican garden, where his carriage awaits him. There the pope remains some time, taking coffee and other refreshments, surrounded by his intimate friends. The conversation runs on the topics of the day and on articles concerning the pope or papal politics that appear in Italian or foreign journals. At sunset the pope returns to the palace. At about 9 o'clock, after praying on his knees for half an hour, his holiness retires to bed. All of which is not bad for a man 78 years of age.

Would be a Mean Trick.

"Dinny, did you be r'adin' in the noospaper that Jay Gould's income is tin cints ivary toime he clock ticks?"

"Troth, an' Oi did. Wouldn't it be a mane thrick now if some blaggyard was to sneake in an' sthop 'is clock fur 'im?"

A Good Name

At home is a tower of strength abroad. This is fully verified by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has a reputation at home unequalled by any other medicine. In Lowell, Mass., where it is made, whole neighborhoods are taking it at the same time, and the most remarkable unsolicited testimonials are received from Lowell people. The druggists of Lowell say they sell more of Hood's Sarsaparilla than of all other Sarsaparillas or blood purifiers. The same wonderful success is extending all over the country, as the superior curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla become known. For any affection caused by impure blood or low state of the system, try the "peculiar medicine."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

AN UNANSWERED

CHALLENGE

The experience of a large number of the representative Business Men of the country, East and West, has, as they most EMPHATICALLY testify, abundantly proven the

Marked Superiority Over All Other Life Companies of the NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL.

As a matter of right and value to the company, and of special interest to the public, some of this testimony has been published. To offset its decisive effect in winning business, numerous statements have been put forth (the printed ones generally anonymous) by agents of competing companies, which, covering but part of the facts, or comparing entirely dissimilar policies, seem to show that some other companies furnish nearly as well secured and cheap life insurance as the NORTHWESTERN.

THE PLAIN TRUTH, Overwhelmingly Proven, is that no other company matches the NORTHWESTERN in security —comparing character of company, and kind, quality, interest-earning capacity, and amount (ratio to liabilities) of assets, and that, comparing actual experience of policy-holders, no other company has for fifteen years past furnished life insurance at so low net cost!

To dispose of the unfair counter statements made, and settle the question of cost beyond dispute, there was printed in November, 1885, and given to the public a

"Challenge of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company to All Other Companies," containing in full the exact experience of more than 100 persons insured in the NORTHWESTERN for the past 10, 15 and 20 years, each example followed by these words: "All other life insurance companies are challenged to produce in comparison a case of the same date, age and kind."

THE PUBLIC SHOULD KNOW that this challenge still stands unanswered and undoubtedly because unanswerable!

Before closing any contract for life insurance, consult your interests by getting the FACTS as to security, unsurpassed management, and unmatched cheapness of insurance in the NORTHWESTERN.

We most gladly admit the worth and character of many other companies whose contracts are safe and good, but there are "good," "better" and "best" companies, and only by critical comparison can you determine which is
